

Introduction

Why Renters Feel Their Vote Is Insignificant

- Landlord Behavior
- Consistent Code Violations
- Increase in Eviction Rates
- Rent Out of Control

Why Our Votes Are Important

Increasing voter turnout among renters could have dramatic implications in the outcomes of elections

More affordable housing

Our votes could sway more tenant friendly legislation

If our vote wasn't important then why are there attempts to suppress them

Conclusion

We must make a joint effort to encourage our fellow tenants to vote. Think of the power we would have if we united at the polls.

There are more of us than there are landlords. We could better advocate for better living conditions, and lower rents. The powers that be would have to stand up and take notice that we are important, our votes are important and we are demanding change.
